

National Council of Higher Education Resources

NCHER

Welcome to the National Council of Higher Education Resources website! Whether you are a member organization, a student, a borrower, or an interested stakeholder, you are here because you care about helping individuals successfully and affordably navigate postsecondary education, find fulfilling pursuits, and achieve long-term financial stability. That shared purpose is what motivates NCHER and its members every day.

The landscape of higher education finance is changing rapidly. The Trump administration overhauled the U.S. Department of Education and Congress passed the most significant federal student aid reform in two decades. These and other underlying changes will reshape the systems and organizations that serve students and families every day.

In this critical moment, NCHER is bringing together those entities that are rising to the occasion and finding solutions to persistent and mutating challenges. Our members cannot dwell on what is outside their control. Rather, they must identify and implement the next best action they can take to serve their communities. NCHER exists to support their work through robust advocacy, timely communications, rigorous regulatory analysis, and the kind of peer learning that only a national membership organization can provide.

On our website, you will find our advocacy priorities, resources, event offerings, and the many ways to engage in federal policy development – from attending our conferences to serving on our committees and caucuses. For students and families, you will find guidance on applying for and repaying student loans, along with tools to strengthen your financial literacy.

If your organization is already a member of NCHER, thank you for your support! If you are not yet a member, we welcome all those who share our mission of expanding access to affordable, high-quality postsecondary education.

Sincerely,
